Money Matters at University of South Carolina

Praise the LORD! Our sponsoring club for our Genocide Awareness Project (GAP) at the University of South Carolina (USC) on October 21-22, 2024 was College Republicans. The USC College Republicans (CR) president found out that university money was available to student organizations through student fees as is the case at numerous campuses. CR president Noah submitted the request for several thousand dollars to USC student government, and it was approved and accordingly given to the USC College Republicans. This payment covered a large portion of our GAP expenses. What a blessing to have university funds go to a conservative club, and not just liberal ones.

The matter of money was also on the table because the university has attempted to charge the CR students for security fees that were based on a "threat assessment" they conducted. The First Amendment does not only apply to people who have money - free speech must be free. If anyone were to act out or get violent at GAP, it would be pro-abortion students or passersby. We have sent the university attorney and administration our attorney letter that makes the law clear, and we expect the security fees to be waived. If not, we will assist the students in filing a lawsuit against the university, and they will certainly prevail.

Prior to bringing GAP on campus, CBR taught our Pro-Life Training Academy to the CR students on October 12. This practical training prepares students to defend life and answer questions and arguments posed by many students. They can use this training beyond GAP as they interact with their peers and others.

Daily Gamecock wrote about the content of GAP and the student response:

> Upon returning from fall break, students traversing Greene Street were met with a display of posters with post-abortion images, pro-life sentiments and comparisons between abortion and historical examples of genocide — a central issue on Nov. 5 across the country no matter who wins…. [College Republican President] reported 'lots of really good conversation…' https://bit.ly/3CJcOXJ

Our team had great display locations both days and thousands of students came by. We were grateful that God provided extra prayer support through two women who regularly prayer walk around the campus. Hannah and Enthia are not USC students, but they pray on campus each Tuesday. They want to see Gen Z reached for the Gospel; they asked the Lord to bless GAP, praying that our message would remain in the minds of the students. The two women stayed by GAP and joined in debates with students.

At USC, we had a steady presence of campus officials. During the GAP display, two or three university administrators were present, along with several police officers.

GAP works. CBR volunteer Patty observed that students "can't NOT look at the pictures. They walk by, glance up, then down, but then have to look back up!"

Here is some of the positive feedback we received:

- "I'm not sure where I stand, but you guys are getting your point across."
- "My mom had me in college and she graduated." (Good work, mom!)
- A biochemistry student joined in our conversations with pro-aborts. Emilyn told us: "I want to tackle this at all levels, wherever God leads me, and I'm so glad you're here." Emilyn did not know GAP was going to be on campus, but our presence provided an opportunity for her to speak up for preborn children.

Confused students exposed their troubled thinking:

- There are "500,000 kids in foster care. It's better to abort a child than to put him into the system" They may argue that a fetus is not yet a child, but our pictures prove otherwise. Fact check: An estimated 369,000 children were in the US child welfare system in 2022. US Foster Care Statistics 2024: Data & Trends [Updated] https://bit.ly/3ZiaMXk
- A female student wearing a cross walked up to the display and asked why we were doing GAP. She claimed abortion should be a woman's decision, not a man's. She began to swear and left us with this ad hominem attack: "You all are as old as hell!" NOTE: If you don't have solid arguments, shift to ageism.

One student protestor singled out our staff member, Caleb Johnson, and she stared at him most of the day. Finally, she came over and blasted him verbally and walked off. The next morning, the same young woman came back, apologized to Mr. Johnson for her poor behavior and then stayed for a civil conversation. This is an example of God working through GAP.

This Carolina News and Reporter article link (below) shows the steady stream of students who pass by GAP on the way to class. Some will return to investigate after class. The link includes a short video of student protesters dancing in front of our GAP display. Their silly actions actually can get the attention of other students, who will come closer and look at our photo signs. https://bit.ly/4fHInQ4

A science professor thanked CBR volunteer Tony for GAP being at USC, saying "it's very important."

Grateful CBR Staff Member

God has blessed CBR with many faithful staff and volunteers. This week we received this message from John, a truck driver, who is stepping down after serving in Tennessee for many years:

> My years of working with Fletcher and Jane, other staff and the many other volunteers, was a Special Blessing. Being the driver for our east Tennessee CBR office and ministry was a unique privilege in many ways. That Gregg had the resolve and anointing of the Lord to launch CBR was a perpetual encouragement and challenge to also continue what you began. Finally, at age 77, the Lord is giving me the anointing, health, and opportunity to launch a serious evangelism outreach ministry in my area that has been my Calling, Vision and Burden for my entire pastoral and Bible teacher ministry life!!! I am convinced that He has kept me here for "such a time as this" to be part of a great Final Harvest of souls at the End of these Last Days before Jesus Calls His Church Bride Up!!! Glory hallelujah!!!

CBR-Sweden Inspires a Help Group Start-up

Mats Selander founded and has faithfully led our CBR-Sweden affiliate since 2004. This week, during our CBR International Zoom conference call, Mr. Selander reported that a woman was crying near last Friday's abortion photo sign display. He sent a team member over to speak with Jenny. She learned that Jenny is in a crisis pregnancy; she wants to carry the baby to term but her boyfriend wants her to abort. He travels the world for his work, so the situation is challenging, but Mr. Selander offered that CBR-Sweden would help her and she gratefully accepted the help. CBR-Sweden is following up with Jenny and so is Life Choice pregnancy website staff.

Mr. Selander encouraged Sofi, the founder of Life Choice, to start this ministry in 2020. She told Mr. Selander she had left another pro-life group which did not share her vision to help women. He urged her to start this important work. Sofi's group has been quite effective through their creation of two websites: one for women facing crisis pregnancies and another for post-abortion grief. They have given out approximately 100 baby-bags to women, and they know that more than 23 have chosen life as they have been able to follow them through their pregnancies and support them practically. Life Choice has photos of the 23 precious babies.

Many of Sofi's volunteers saw CBR photos shown in public, and that prompted them to volunteer with her web-based outreach ministry. CBR-inspired websites change minds 24/7 in ways of which we are often unawares. This demonstrates the effectiveness of our strategy to educate the public using prenatal and abortion pictures. The primary problem worldwide is people think the preborn baby is a blob of cells in the first three months.

Mr. Selander is considering a campaign next year that would inform the public that abortion is also a men's issue. Men need to repent of past abortion involvement and step up to save their babies.

Save Babies While Buying or Selling Your Home

You can help the Center for Bio-Ethical Reform receive a charitable donation through a real estate transaction. Real Estate for Life will assist you in buying or selling your home or business. Email ProLifeRealEstate@yahoo.com or call/text 248-431-1440 and indicate you were referred by CBR. They'll send you the name of an agent in your area. If a sale is made, CBR will receive a generous donation from the realtor's commission. There is no cost to you.
